MISCELLANEOUS READING.

From the Indiana Journal. THE BATTLE SWORD.

BY D. BRAINERD WILLIAMSON. Rest, mighty Blade, the Chieftain's trust! Touch not, O Time, with eating rust, The brand that flashed in victory, That waved aloft to every eye, The "in hoc vincit" on the cloud. Where raged the battle fiend, dark-browed Unsheathed, it burned beneath the sun,

Borne by the arm of Washington,

Rest, mighty Blade! baptized of God. To cleave in twain the despot's rod. To break oppression's shackling power And guard our Freedom-heavenly dower! Though witness oft of grim despair, When Britain's thunder shook the air, And our scant ranks were falling fast, Before the crushing iron blast; When Star and Stripe seemed lost in gloom Unrent and black as rayless doom, One dauntless heart, one mighty soul, Behold the belching tempest roll, And on the storm, thou Sword of Right, Hurled thy red flames in awful light-The murky conflict's only sun.

The Battle Sword of Washington! Rest, mighty Blade! thy laurels are As deathless as the 'Morning Star,' I see them spring from noble soil, Enriched by patriot blood and toil; I see them bloom at Germantown, At Valley Forge, neath winter's frown, At Trenton's quickly ended fray, On Monmouth's plain, and Princeton's day, And Yorktown, last and proudest field Embiazoned on Columbia's shield; While thro' time's lapse each jewel bright, That bursts upon our flag in light.

And bless the Sword of Liberty! Rest mighty Blade! the Chieftain sleeps! Columbia his memory keeps, His deeds are hers, not less are thine, Thou sacred gift on Freedom's shrine Rest thee-a nation holds thy fame, Blent with its founder's honored name; And after us, our childrens' eyes, And theirs, shall bless the noble prize, And babes shall learn the victory That left their ancient fathers free, And they shall say in grateful pride-"This scabbard graced the Hero's side, And this brave blade was like a flame, That drove our foe to rout and shame. its gleatning fires our standard seemed, For where it was, our banner streamed,

Shall give new lustre unto thee.

This Battle Sword and Washington!.' *On the 7th of February, 1843, in the House of Representatives, at the National Capital, the Hon. George W. Summers, of Virginia, presented to Congress and the people of the United States, in behalf of Samuel T. Washington, "the sword worn by George Washington, first as Colonel in the Colonial service of Virginia, in Forbes' catapaign against the French and Indians, and afterwards during the whole period of the War of Indexencatapaign against the French and Indians, and after-wards during the whole period of the War of Indepen-dence. It is a plain coursal or hanger, with a green hilt and silver guard. On the upper ward of the scabbard is engraved 'J. Balley, Fishkill.' On the silver buckle and clasp of the belt are engraven the letters 'G. W.,' and the figures 1757.' This sword is known as his 'Battie Sword.'-O. II. Smure's Remissionees.
